. Hindi Fonts - Katakana, Devanagari, and Other. Unicode Word Order Walkman Chanakya 901, Marathi. Font size; Free. .Across the U.S., bisexual individuals face unique challenges in their access to reproductive health care. From lack of inclusion in high-impact initiatives, to lack of representation on federal advisory groups, to lack of access to health care facilities, lesbian, gay, and bisexual (LGB) people face an array of barriers that, if left unaddressed, could result in the promotion and provision of LGB-unfriendly health care to the nation's most vulnerable people, including bisexual women of reproductive age. In January of this year, the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) announced it would reverse the decades-long prohibition on funding for abortion services. This decision fits into a larger pattern of bans and restrictions on abortion access: abortion restrictions are on the rise, as are barriers to accessing and paying for abortion services. Almost half of states have seen increases in their anti-abortion restrictions over the past decade, particularly laws that make abortion care illegal. A new Gallup poll, conducted July 19-26, indicates that the number of pro-choice Americans has fallen to a record low, demonstrating that the country's political discourse on abortion is more polarized than it's been in a decade. The Gallup survey shows support for access to abortion (53 percent) has fallen in the past year to the lowest level of support recorded since 1994. And a record number of people, 45 percent, are now opposed to access to abortion. A new analysis of a closely watched dataset from the National Survey of Family Growth and the National Health Interview Survey (NHIS) shows that among women who are sexually active and have had sex in the past year, the abortion rate fell 11 percent between 2011 and 2016 — by far the largest decrease of any decade. Last week, a federal judge in Texas struck down the state's new abortion restrictions, making it the first state to challenge in court its attempts to limit access to abortion. Judge White, who issued his ruling on June 5, cited in his decision previously undisclosed, previously unavailable research — including a study showing that 88 percent of doctors in Texas who provide abortions are women — and declared the state's new regulations unconstitutional. The Supreme Court is now deciding whether to hear the case. A record number of women are experiencing 💎
